Copyright © 2020 InfoSpace Holdings, LLC, a System1 company I love movies. I love music. But I especially love everyone when I'm impressed by them. When they force me to feel something. The things we hold on to when we have nothing else. Things that comfort us, remember us, and connect us in ways we can't explain otherwise. We can all choose the latest Disney and Pixar movies to chart or choose songs that can be something iconic enough that we love it or hate it forever. (Let's go from frozen or despicable, I think happiness.) However, some of the best songs have long been forgotten or dismissed because they didn't sell million downloads on iTunes. My playlist is a wide array of songs - I don't stick to a particular genre. I choose what I feel or need at that particular time. If you're ready to run, you're going for something different from a casual walk in the neighborhood. If you just need something to sing (you can add it without doing well), who knows what I can find. Being an adult doesn't mean we shouldn't miss a G-grade movie. In most cases, even animated films struggle, guilt, and Often, the film's characters face decisions that they hope to undo as the results are known, as we often experience. As in life, there are times when we fail miserably and achieve greatness. Maybe that's why I don't miss new animated movies - there may just be hidden treasures buried somewhere in the soundtrack that I might fall in love with and need. The song captures that moment for us and attaches a melody to it so we can sing along. This song is not in any particular order, but life sometimes work that way, too. Somewhere there – from American Tails (by Linda Ronstadt and James Ingram), our lives take us on a journey that keeps us apart from the people we love the most and the best way to get through things until we see them again is to know that someone misses you. We feel that we accept them and their love, even though we are separated by several kilometers. This song comforts me when I know I'm loved, even if it's a little lonely and our lives are busy and chaotic. We can't be everywhere, but our love can. The trail we blaze - The Road to El Dorado (Elton John) is a life adventure, and this song reminds us to travel the less traveled route. Seek to be on the other side. excited and held back by fear. Be the discoverer of life. We may not always know what's at the end of the road and it won't lead us to the lost city of gold, but that's not really going to matter after all. Being a trailblazer means stepping down the street from the crowd and chasing the dreams we can see... It means starting a conversation... It means standing up when others sit down. All the big changes in the world were possible because of people who were not limited by conformity, and we should follow their lead and maybe cause ourselves a little spirited! Here comes the sun – in the Bee Movie (Cheryl Crow) this song just makes us sing. It fills the heart with happiness and we smile. On a cloudy day, we yearn for that great orange light in the sky, and we not only warm the earth, but also give us hope. Life's things don't always go the way we want, but disappointment may be waiting around the corner, but this song makes me believe, hold on, and stay strong. It reminds us that life is always full of change. Someone is waiting for you – from rescuers (leah salon) through our journeys, lives and our wanderings, we sometimes find ourselves lost, not able to find our way home. It's easy to believe that we can be so easily forgotten, but no matter how long it takes, why would you say no matter why you left, you wouldn't be greeted with open arms and loved more? Sometimes, we feel the need to see what else is and we don't realize what we're doing, and we're out of one thing we take for granted. In our lifetimes, we will almost meet people who will And everything could be there for you... Don't take it for granted. Here I am - in the Holy Spirit, Shimaron's Stallion (Brian Adams) is no bigger song about ourselves and what we want than this ballad. In it, I find my vulnerability, chasing what seems out of reach, and comforting to know that knowing who I am is more valuable than anything else. We can lose possessions and fall on our faces, but if we don't know who we are or what we believe, nothing else matters. If we don't know who we are, what's the point of living? This song reminds me to stop hiding behind everything that scares me and trusts the freedom that comes with the truth found in our essence and soul. It's a life full of chaotic, busy moments, and sometimes the best thing we can do is stop worrying about everything. We spend a lot of energy and time sticking to scenarios that may never come. That doesn't mean that madness is gone, it just means we have to step back from it for a while. It is our little mini vacation. our escape. Of course, we know that the real world still exists, but sometimes our philosophy must be one day at a time, and what we don't know now will figure out later when we need it. You can create a motto and get it through it every day. Around Riverbend – At Pocahontas (Ariel Jacobs), we have a sense of adventure that excites us, and even if we don't know what happens next, fear doesn't thrill us and keep us moving. Staying in the same place is not an option, and pushing envelopes is always our agenda. Our endless curiosity is what's there and how we can interact is a way of deceiving the staleness of our boring existence. We break some rules along the way and allow us to see things from a different perspective, so that our minds can grow in ways that we may otherwise have missed. Keep going... Take the peak. It may just be everything you want. You've got a friend in me – from Toy Story (Randy Newman) we need friends no matter what, we all have friends. The kind of friends who show up when they need something or when it's convenient, as well as someone who will do anything and everything for us. They are committed to your friendship and need you as much as you need them. You won't always see eye to eye and you can say things you might regret later, but when it comes to that, you have each other's backs. No matter how. Thick and thin. When all is said and done, a man is no better than the friend he has and the friendship he gives. Why should I be worried? – Oliver & No matter where we come from or how much we know from The Company (Billy Joel), we can't always plan for life. We must adapt to ever-changing landscapes, traps and obstacles, and improvise East Sea need to. No one has a blueprint for life and no book teaches us what to expect, but we know we somehow have worries and uncertainties. It's not how we live our best lives. Walking tall and confident through life will teach us to be strong and brave when things don't go our way. Even if we don't have all the answers to every question, we can still act like we do. You'll be on my mind - from Tarzan (by Phil Collins) having my own three sons and sending the last one to college last year, this song was one of many that made me happy and sad at the same time. A child's love never leaves, and it is a love that cannot be forgotten or misplaced, no matter how far it travels. Sometimes our families are not the families we were born into, but the ones we connect and love without boundaries. Our loved ones don't go the day without feeling our love and when the moments together seem short or never enough, let them know this... You are always in my heart, closer than you can imagine. Reflection – Who in Mulan (Leah Salonga) didn't let parents guide us to a career or college choice? Who thought they should be the ones who really didn't, but followed a paved path for them because it was easier? If our main goal in life is to be happy, the people who love us the most want most of that for us too. Sometimes, we don't yet know who we are, and only traveling through life can truly find ourselves. Don't be afraid to look at yourself in the mirror and see what's in your heart and soul. For people to see the real thing you're a little scary is something we'll never forget - at that moment we can't resuing anymore. We are just the ones we were born to be born with. When you believe – from the Prince of Egypt (by Mariah Carey) didn't know the power behind one's faith until it happened to me. I did not understand how one thought can change everything ... It's a way to convince you that everything you can't see or touch is still important. You may be pulled in a direction that is rarely shared, but being afraid is not an option. Miracles show us where we come from, whatever happened to us, and sometimes life gives us moments that change us forever. It's not about what we know or how far we've gone to school, it's about anything that's possible, so it comes with real strength when you believe. Little Wonders - Meet Robinson (Rob Thomas) We can look back on life and pick out the really bad things we wish we've never lived. Every day, we are exposed to small, seemingly trivial moments that keep us grounded in a way that won't be big. Most of us are too busy paying attention to anything other than being in front of us. Sometimes, what seems like the wrong turn actually takes us to where we intended to be together. Don't miss the little wonder that is so busy in life that it becomes a really big memory. Feel the Light - At Home (Jennifer Lopez), Life Takes Our Hands and Pushes Us Into Situations We Don't Want When you go down in a crumpled mess, the purpose is a good one. Every emotion we try to hide rushes to the surface and we don't worry about what matters most. We stumbled. We get lost. We give up. This song gives me hope in places I never see and confirms that love is the greatest of all. We all feel we have to make choices and live with them forever. But that's not true... We can make a difference, even if it's not something others will do. True friendship will make the rounds through life, but in the end, it's always a house that finds itself back. God helps with deportation – none of us really get along in Notre Dame's Huntback (Bette Midler). We are all different, but we try to identify the norms that crowds and society have created for us. Some days I don't know where to go. I have no answers, I feel lonely. Maybe we believe that no one else really understands what we feel or is afraid to actually be vulnerable with someone. Honestly, we don't know what we need, but we know that fighting is good, and we seem to lose our sense of selfishness when we give unconditionally to others. We try to be more passionate and generous to those who have less. We want to ease the suffering of those who are bullied, ridiculed and dismissed as trivial. Sometimes we should all be reminded of each other's differences and celebrate together instead. Rainbow Connection - In the Muppet movie (Frog Commit) OK, you caught me. This isn't really an animated film, but I grew up watching the Muppets every Sunday night at 7pm and I had to remind them of everything the rainbow comes to you only after it's raining. Life can bring storms and we don't know how long it will last, but we know the sun will come out tomorrow (which might even come out of another movie), and we'll see the light once again. Not because we believe there is a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, but because there is some magic in the way the light reflects drops of water. The song invites you to believe in the power of dreams and why each means something to the master. We still wish for stars, we still search the sky for answers, and we still love singing these songs. Bottom line: The best soundtracks come with good scores and receive many awards, but as much as those accolades are achieved, sometimes, the best melodies and words hanging together are hidden behind what is a little less human. The basic principles of comics that succeed in expressing human emotions can be difficult to achieve without music. Some of these songs collect dust and are forgotten and just listed as tracks on a CD. Just because a famous actor or actress doesn't provide a protagonist's voice doesn't mean the movie is useless. Most of the time, hidden gems are gems that we need to find ourselves. Life is about life and life. challenges and the opportunities that come with it. Some days are easier than others. Some people have questions, while others provide answers. We also find hope, curiosity, and love at the moments we capture in life when we chase our dreams and find good friends along the way. This song becomes your new favorite playlist and when you get a chance, maybe watch a movie too. Main photo courtesy of unsplash.com unsplash.com Oscar kiss via Twitter
